Before Commander A. L. Key, former naval ald to the President, resumed his testimony before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee to-day. Chairman Hale made a statement in reference to the controversy of yesterday when the witness showed a disposition to attack the testimony given by Chief Constructor Capps and other official champions of American methods of constructor.

"You may go on under the rules of the committee," warned Mr. Hale. "You make statements from your own knowledge and observation. It is not a part of the conditions laid down by this committee for one witness to take up the testimony of another witness and criticize testimony he believes to be misleading."

Commander Key agreed to comply with this ruling. He then proceeded to compare American ships constructed since 1899 with British ships built in the same period. His diagrams tended to show that American vessels are overdraft to a greater degree than the English ships. He agreed with Admiral Remey and Captain Winslow that ships should carry full bunkers of coal when they go into action, and he said that not to do so would be "preposterous." His observations in regard to the draft of vessels were that the decision of the Walker Board of May 18, 1896, that "a battleship's normal draft should be her fighting draft, not her maximum draft, with full stores on board," had been disregarded by the naval constructors.

few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines, and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the polson of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Sunt's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal and other harmless antisepties in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will in a carrier in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

POCAHONTAS, VA. March 11.—The funeral of George William Black, the two-and-a-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Black, whose death occurred on Thursday, took place from the residence on Saturday, conducted by the Rev. F. Olivier, of Bluefield, W. Va. It is safe to say that in all the history of Pocahontus the death of no child within her borders has caused such general and widespread gloom as has his death. He was a child of the brightest temperament and of the most unusually sunny and sociable disposition, and he knew by name most of those of his parents' circle of friends, and had always a ready and smilling response for their greetings.

The whole town was interested during his Illness, and so anxious was the desire for his recovery that inquiries were made and information sought of his condition in the stores, on the streets, wherever people met. Everywhere earnest, heartfelt solocitude was shown for this bright flower of earth, so soon to be transplanted to an everlusting home in heaven. He was a most beloved child, and his death has brought tears of sorrow to many hearts, and tears of deepest sympathy are freely flowing for his bereaved partnia. The most skilled physicians, trained nurses the untiring devotion or relatives and friends, could not say the land of death, and this most itender nurtured darling was called to found the angel band, while a host of deviate meas are mourning.

Who plucked that flower?" said the gardener. "I." said the Master, and the gardener held his peace.
